THE BARTLETT CONVESTION. The conservative and liberal citizens of Shelby county yesterday met the Democrats in convention, presided over by Mr. A. B. Haynes, at the courthouse in Bartlett, and, after a session of a few hours, characterized in the main by a spirit of compromise, agreed to make canvass in August next unthe Democratic name and banner. Rarely in the history of this county has so large a number of representative men assembled within its limits, and seldom has it been given to newspapers anywhere to report one better managed, wherein there was so great a variety of opinion to harmonize. There were men present who represented every phase of political sentiment between A Platform Broad Enough and Strong Liberal Republicanism and Democracy, and yet, all being actuated by a determination for unity in the public interests, the proceedings were successfully conducted to a close without any wrangling, and through a debate which lasted but little over an hour. Gentlemen who have hitherto differed with the APPEAL and the Democratic party, were conspicuous in their efforts for unity and harmony, and we point with pride to the speeches of the Democrats foremost on the occasion as indicating how generously they met our now political friends, the conservatives and liberals. It was a real love-feast-the result of a spirit we will endeavor to foster, and will not willingly see die; and we feel safe in asserting that the result, presented in the resolutions adopted, afford assurances of success otherwise very doubtful in the contest with the Radicals in August next. All with the members of the press present as his assistants. Carried. common platform for a common purpose, and supported by the Avalanche, Register, Ledger and APPEAL, have only to be true to their resolutions, and nominate the best men regardless of creed, nationality, race or past party affiliations, to sweep the county next fall.

Hot Debate Over the Alcorn-Consure Resolution-The Document Tabled-A Street Railway in Corinth-Etc., Etc.

Special to the Appeal.]

JACKSON, MISS., February 14.—In the senate to-day, after a hot and lengthy debate, the house resolution censuring Senator Alcorn, and asking his resignation, was tabled by a vote of twenty-four to four. Lieutenant-Governor Davis took the floor and made a lengthy speech in opposition to the resolution. He said Alcorff was the ablest man in the party. He had stood by it in its darkest days, and was now working in behalf of the levee bill which would do more good for the State than the fifty-six men in the house who voted for the resolution could do in their whole lives. Furlong, Gleed, Gray, Parker, Price and Sullivan, also begged the senate not to dishonor itself by the adoption of such a resolution. The four voting for the adoption of the resolution were, Little, of Monroe, Smith, of Claiborne, Albright and Shirley, of Chicksasw. In the house the following new bills were introduced: Authorizing the construction of a street raitroad in Corinth; to pay county assessors the same amount as paid by the State; segulating fees and salaries; authors izing the levee commissioners to impose a tax of two and one-half mills on the dollar on assessed property of the district, instead of one cent a pound on cotton and ten cents an acre on land; their State taxes hereafter be paid in United States currency. Other bills unimportant.

In the senate the house bill appropriating fifty thousand dollars to defray the expenses of the legislature, was so amended that no appropriation should be made for the present session for more than seventy days, and returned to the house.

The house refused to concur in the amendment.

Both houses adjourned to Wednesday next.

FIRE IN TRENTON.

Secretary McBrooks read the following call, which had been published in the APPLAL, and other Memphis newspapers, several days previous to the meeting:

"TO THE PEOPLE OF SHKLBY COUNTY, TENNESSEE.

"Important elections will take place this year, which involve the vital interests of the county and State; and it is deemed advisable for the Conservative and Democratic clitzens of Shelby county to meet and consider the local and general issues of the approaching can was will secure harmony and the mills of Shelby county to meet and consider the local and general issues of all bleral, progressive policy. From an Occasional Correspondent. TRENTON, TENN., February 12.-Last light a most disastrous conflagaration visited his place, which in a short time swept away this place, which in a short time swept away the two halves of the southensiern side of Court Square. The fire originated in an attic over J. O. Burgess's drug store, the property of Grigsby Bros. and A. S. Curry. The alarm was given about nine o'clock, and in an half hour the fire had burned south the entire length of Coloniade building, when a breeze spring up which turned it east, where it communicated to the hardware house of Dava municated to the hardware house of Dave Senter, from whence it continued round the square until it had reached and burned the elegant brick building built by W. E. Pybass and W. M. Halt, occupied by Pybass, family grocer, and William Baughn, a saloon, and fitted-up and used in the second story as a city hall. Here the fire was stopped, after having burned down thirteen business houses and two or three smaller frame houses. The losses as far as can be ascertained are about as follows: Dr. Love, owner of the rear end of the Colonnade building; no insurance; Service of the control of the Property of the Control of the Property of the Control of the Cont

The convention called to meet at Bartlett yesterday, was called to order at twelve o'clock precisely by Harrison Irby Esq., justice of the peace. It was in the highsense a representative gathering, com-sed, as it was, of the best men in the unity, few of them heretofore conspicuous politics, and was, from first to last, characerized by a spirit of compromise and unity.

He moved a resolution to that effect, putit to the meeting, and it was unanimously adopted.

COMMITTEE ON RESOLUTIONS. General N. B. Forrest said the next business before the convention was the appointment of a committee on resolution. He would therefore move that a committee of one from each civil district in the county and one from each ward of the city of Memphis be appointed on such committee.

Colonel M. D. L. Stewart, while not opposing the motion of General Forrest, thought it somewhat impracticable, as all the civil districts in the county, and perhaps all the wards of the city of Memphis were not represented in the convention. wards of the city of Memphis were not represented in the convention.

General Forrest said that in his resolution he simply meant to appoint members of the committee from districts and wards represented in the convention.

Colonel Stewart moved that the secretary read the call for the meeting of the convention. Carried; and

REMARKS BY MR. ETHERIDGE.

Hon. Mr. Etheridge, in response to loud calls for a speech, rose, and said it would be unwise in his opinion to make any remarks until the committee had made their report. He might indorse that report, or he might oppose it, when he heard it read. The grest grievance they had to compiain of was the exorbitant taxes, and the constant visits of the tax-gatherer. He did not mean anything personal in saying so, but he wanted something done for those who were being ground down to pauperism by exhorbitant taxes. And he would then say that no party names, no party combinations would prevent him from voting for candidates whom he believed to be honest, and who had "low taxation" inscribed on their banners.

A RECESS. 'Squire Caldwell moved that the convention take a recess till the committee was prepared

After partaking of a well-served and substantial dinner, prepared by "Uncle Tom" and "Aunt Mary," of Raleigh, in the basement, the members of the convention reassembled in the hall, President Haynes in the chair. A. E. FRANKLAND, WHEREAS, This meeting has been called by anti-Radical citizens of Sheiby county to secure the united co-operation of the Liberal, Conservative and Democratic voters thereof, who desire rigid economy and honesty in the administration of county and State affairs, the speedy reduction of onerous taxes, and the election of competent and efficient officers, regardless of nationality or previous political affiliations; for the purpose of Setting on foot such a movement as will secure harmony of action in the conduct of a liberal, progressive policy in the approaching elections; and rully recognizing that the Democratic party is the only organization now in existence in Shelby county confronting the Radical party, and that under its organization, characterised by a spirit tempered with liberality and conservatism, these objects and purposes can best be accomplished, and success achieved in the approaching election, we adopt and promulgate for our future government the following platform of principles. Therefore, be it resolved, First—That it is the duty of all good citizens to make a united effort to secure the most competent and reliable men for office, that the laws may be executed impartially and the burdens of taxation be distributed equally among all classes.

equally among all classes.

Second—That honesty and economy in our local government, reduction of taxes and expenses, prompt and rigid settlements with public officers, exposure of corruption, and the punishment of delinquents without fear or favor must be enforced.

Third—That taxation should be equal and aniform, and no one species of property be taxed higher than another.

Fourth—That we recognize the equality, before the law, of all citizens, and that in the selection of candidates for office, capacity and honesty shall be the test of merit, without regard to nationality or former political predilections.

Fifth—That all efforts to array one race or cle sa against another is odious to the genius of the same and the same service of public peace and prosperity, and subversive of Republican institutions.

Sixth—That the agricultural and mechanical interests of our country are the foundation of its prosperity, and that wisdom and justice demand that these interests shall be protected against the exactions of monopolies, and should be fostered by judicious legislation. Seventh-That in order to accomplish these Seventh—That in order to accomplish these ends a committee be appointed, composed of one from each ward in Memphis and one from each civil district outside of the city, to whom shall be committed the management of this movement, and who shall select trom their number a sub-committee composed of seven members to be known as the executive board of the committee of Shelby county, clothed with full power to call meetings for the selection or nomination of candidates, to appoint necessary district or ward committees, to fill vacancies in their own body, and to do and perform all other acts necessary for the promotion of the objects of this meeting, and to continue in office until the meeting of the next convention.

THE REJECTED RESOLUTIONS. THE REJECTED RESOLUTIONS. Mr. Etheridge thought that the other resolu-tions which had been submitted to the com-mittee should be read for the information of the people, then the people could select the resolutions that were best suited to their views.

Mr. W. W. McDowell—I move that the resolutions be read in the hearing of this convenintions be read in the hearing of this convention.

Mr. B. P. Anderson thought the convention ought first to vote upon the resolutions submitted by the committee. If they did not like them then they could vote against them and take up the others. He thought, however, that the resolutions of the committee would suit the convention.

Mr. Etheridge suggested that the resolutions placed in the hands of the committee by Colonel Topp, be read by the secretary.

Mr. Anderson said he had no objection to Colonel Topp's resolutions being read before Colonel Topp's resolutions being read before the vote was taken. the vote was taken.

Mr. J. M. Keating said they had no right to go behind the report of the committee after they had committed the resolutions to their charge without reading. The proper plan was to take a vote on the report and resolutions of the committee, and if that did not sait them they could go back and consider the other resolutions artistics. ther resolutions scriation.
Mr. Brearteau—Question! Question! I call mr. Brearteau—Question! Question! I call for the question.

Mr. L. W. Finlay said the resolutions were not open for debate, as Colonel Topp had been merely requested to read his own resolutions. Colonel Topp—I offer them in lieu.

Secretary Brooks read the following, which had been submitted to the committee by Mr. J. J. DuBose:
WHEREAS, In view of the fact that county WHEREAS, In view of the fact that county and State elections are to be held in August and November next, we deem it expedient and proper that the Conservative-Democratic party of Shelby county should take immediate steps to organize, to the end by united action the people may the better express their choice for men, honest and capable, to discharge the duties of the various offices to be filled;

Excepted. That we the records of Shelby county, in mass-meeting assembled, appoint a Democratic executive committee, whose duty it shall be to designate a day when the people may meet in the various districts of the county and in the wards of the city, for the purpose of selecting delegates to a Democratic-Conservative convention to nominate suitable candidates to fill the county offices; and said committee is empowered to do other and further acts that in their sound discretion and judgment will advance the ends and ob-jects of the Democratic-Conservative party of Shelby county. General Marcus J. Wright said he had sub-mitted certain resolutions to the committee, but he now wished to withdraw them.

REMARKS BY MR. J. D. ADAMS. REMARKS BY MR. J. D. ADAMS.

Mr. J. D. Adams said that he had often found that "haste made waste," and he was opposed to any resolutions that might be proposed there that day. It was their duty to do all in their power to subserve the general interest. Instead of adopting the platform which had been hastliy got up by the committee, they ought to consult together and appoint a committee composed of citizens from each ward of the city, and each district of the county, who could meet in secret conclave if they thought necessary, and publish their platform to the

Mr. Adams said the remarks he had made were merely prefatory. He was opposed to the resolutions on the grounds that they had not been properly matured. He wanted the platform fully matured in the manner he had proposed, and then publish it in the newspapers. They could then unite upon a name, and he did not care whether they called the party, Democrat. Conservative or Liberal, as "a rose by any other name would smell as sweet." He wanted the people to have a voice in this matter, and act as they pleased. When the people saw the platform now before the convention they would immediately say it was the work of three or four men, and begin to cry "ring," "ring." He contended that there was plenty of time to form a good platform and have it published in the newspapers for the benefit of the people, and then a convention could be called to adopt it. He would not at that time move to lay the resolutions of the com-

A POISONING CASE.

The State of Arkansas vs. William Scott, Colored, Charged with the murder of his wife by poisoning. The testimony of Dr. Hoerner, the result of careful chemical analysis of the stomach of the deceased woman, was that upon which the case turned, and as we learn by a dispatch from Helena, yesterday, the prisoner was convicted, and therefore sentenced to death. The following is the analysis as furnished to us at our request by the doctor:

On the first day of September, 1873, Esquire J. L. Baidwin, of Laconia, Arkansas, delivered to the undersigned a stone jar, with the request to submit its contents to a chemical analysis, in order to ascertain whether it contained any kind of poisonous substances. Upon the examination of the external appearance of the stone-jar, it was found to be well secured by a large beef bladder, drawn entirely over its orifice and its aides, so that no drops of liquid could have escaped, nor would have anybody been and to tamper with the interior without its being discovered easily by the condition of the bladder. After the same had been removed, a preliminary inspection was made of the contents of the jar. It was about half filled with an alcoholic liquid, in which there was immersed a stomach, with a piece of entrail attached to it about eighteen inches long. The stomach was closely tied at each end as well as the end of the entrail, but a cut an inch long, in the lower part of the former had allowed the alcohol to enter the cavity, which, after the stomach had been cut open in its entire length, and the liquid permitted to run out, was found entirely emply of food or anything else. Nothing being discovered on the linings of the stomach which might have assisted in the discovery of the probable administration of a poison, it became necessary to sisted in the discovery of the probable admin istration of a poison, it became necessary to stration of a polson, it became necessary to submit the stomach itself to a chemical treatment.

Two ounces of the empty stomach were cut into small shreds and treated in the usual manner, with chlorate of potassa and hydrochloric acid, in order to destroy the organic substances, and liberate the metalic ores in case any should be present. The resulting liquor was treated with suifurested hydrogen which should have precipitated the stroager metalic poisons. But on the purification of the first crude precipitate no further ore was obtained, and thus it was ascertained that metalic poisons were not contained in the linings of the stomach. If the inspection which had caused the examination of the viscera had been correct or in any way founded upon facts, it was thus proved that an organic polson could not have been absorbed by the linings of the stomach, and the subsequent analysis would have reproduced it from the viscera. The alcohol used for their preservation comid have washed only the contents from the stomach, but not extracted any substance from its linings, for it coagulates and hardens such substances, and thus prevents rather the escape of any foreign article from it, and it is known that the treatment with alcohol of the viscera renders it difficult to extract from them successfully and fully the organic poisons which they may contain. As there was not found any unorganic poison in the substance of the stomach liself, they were most likely to be found in the liquor also, because it had swept out and absorbed all twestherefore concluded to search forthwith for organic poisonous substances. If any such were contained in the stomach liself, they were most likely to be found in the liquor also, because it had swept out and absorbed all twe streated in the science in the solid viscera, which thus would be saved for further analysis, and perhaps physiological demonstrations. The liquor was placed in a retort and the alchohol carefully distilled off by means of waterbath at low temperature.

Mr. Thompson, suggesting that he was about to enter that gloomy fiver that doubting Christians feared to cross, asked whether he "was afraid." The dying man, with feeble though clear volce, replied: "It is all right, Mr. Charley; beyond the river I see the Holy City with its shining gates, and Jesus standing within with outsiretched arm—I go to him."
